Asia-Pacific is the fastest growing economic region in the world. The region has undertaken major reforms in the field of ADR and in the promotion of its use in resolving cross-border commercial disputes. Resolving contractual and commercial disputes in various jurisdictions requires knowledge of a number of facets that affect each country. For the said purpose some of the major ADR institutions in the region subscribed to form the APCAM, which will be an international ADR institution, administering cross-border mediations and arbitrations in the respective countries.

The vision of APCAM is to assist the international business community to resolve their international and cross-border disputes under a single set of mediation and arbitration rules and with a uniform fee structure, and to create a single panel of international mediators and arbitrators, with uniform accreditation, so as to establish the best-standards in professionalism and credibility, so that the business community gets unbiased professionals that resolve disputes in a timely manner, and thereby create a better business environment in the region.
